MX3: GOD'S HEALING DESIGN

In 1993, while studying at seminary for ministry, I got infected with a neuro virus that hit me while I was down with adult chicken pox. My doctor warned me that when I reach 50s it will affect me with pain as the virus will be with me for life.

At 34, I started suffering nerve pain of post "herpesic neuritis." It escalated to the point that I was debilitated for most of the day. Pain attacks were like fish hooks embedded on 3 parts of my chest and belly like my flesh was being ripped apart. I awake everyday feeling exhausted fighting the pain.

By mid afternoon my stomach levels were so low and I already feel like an invalid. I went to several doctors for pain management, neuro treatments, immunology experts, even to an acupuncture. No real relief.

By age 38, besides my combo maintenance meds, I took in 3 other expensive medicines just to get by. I told my wife that I will be preparing to retire early. I prayed to God, "Lord, unless you intervene, I don't have the means to carry on this war."

While attending my nephew's wedding in Davao, a friend introduced me to MX3. Capesides after he noticed my distraught face. Reluctantly I took in some during our 2-day stay. I was surprised! I felt better, was able to sleep straight through the night and had lasted thru the entire time with some nervous. My friend helped me get a month's supply. During that month, I got rid of all my other meds and just kept using MX3 to sustain me.

Now at 58, I am up and about just like when I was 38. I travel a lot here and abroad. Each day I go on without my MX3 supply. Thanks to the wonder of God's natural healing and engineering design, put into a capsule which is within our reach. I do thank God for MX3! Is this be the glory!

The Office of the Solicitor General (OSG) under Nathan had recommended to the Court of Appeals that Villanov (instead of his brother) be declared a monk. Says Mr. Antonio Villanov, a brother of former President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo, "I was not involved in this case."

But Nedraza did not see any conflict of interest in his chairman role for Villanova.

"The fact that the Court of Appeals, sitting on the basis of the same evidence as stated, accepted some and combated others seemed to reflect isolated the GRC position on the matter," Markwardt is also defending his decision to stand as godfather to Milken's daughter.

Appelton, however, said that while their actions may be seen as temporary, there were still within the boundaries of the lawsuit's second rule.

"I agree with the view that it is not unethical behavior which may be actionable. It does raise a doubt on their sense of delinquency (perjury), which is unfortunate, but I don't think that is sufficiently wrong to breach ethical standards among judges," said Nathan.

Vizcaya barangay leaders act to cure dole 'failures'

SOLING, NEW VIZCAYA—CHIEFS of this province's 275 villages are pushing for the formation of school boards in the barangay level, so when they send resources, money to address problems like attendance by the government's Expanded Tertiary Education Program (ETEP).

Eduardo Tinogson, Nueva Vizcaya chapter president of the barangay councilors' league of the Philippines (BCLP), said that despite its good intentions, the ETEP has not fully addressed the problems of enhancing the number of dropouts and out-of-school youths in the province.

"With the creation of the barangay school boards, we will aim to solve the problem of attendance by the teens, realizing that this cannot be solved by simply giving them to parents with children of school age," he said.

The program, he said, aims to transfer their commitment. "From one that recognizes the education of children entirely to the Department of Education to one that takes more on-board responsibility for their education."

Cash assistance

"The ETEP has been unable to help if a child is school by giving parents cash assistance. That's how things, however, that in many instances, this has failed," he said.

The 4th province governor-elect PDS in recently signed and signed PDS additional assistance for the family that those children who are in school. These are intended to ensure that the children attend school regularly and undergo regular medical examination in the nearest government health center.

Programs that cover in which students need the money from the government to stay in complete shape, or parents need their money as capital for a living have to be for gambling, instead of giving it to their children to encourage them to go to school.

On Wednesday, the BCLP chapter has finished the first of a series of meetings aimed to help the more than 3,000 village officials of the province meet an agreement that will establish village-level school boards.

"We hope that a barangay-based school board will encourage our constituents to take more active participation in determining the needs of our community or village," said Rodolfo Tullano, Jr., chair of the barangay level village board.

A report carried by the Philippine Herald.

Marcoses in contempt

ABOUT TWO weeks ago, human rights victims suing the Marcos dictatorship won another important legal victory. Whether this will bring the victims closer to realizing the legal justice they have already received—in 1992, the United States District Court for Hawaii ordered the estate of Ferdinand Marcos to pay the victims nearly $2 billion in damages—remains to be seen.

But the new judgment puts additional pressure on the Marcos family, underlines the estate's legal strategy and allows the human rights claimants wider scope for collecting on the damages. For all these reasons, we join the many who had the ruling on both law and morality.

On Oct. 24, the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit affirmed the 2011 decision of the Hawaii District court finding the estate of Ferdinand Marcos in contempt, for failing to pay a fine imposed by the Hawaii courts. The fine was determined at $100,000 per day, because the Marcos estate failed to pay the fine for 10 years, from 1995 to 2005, by the end of the 10-year period the total amount had reached $253,600,000.

A 3-person division of the Ninth Circuit court held that "the $253,600,000 contempt judgment is properly enforceable" by the human rights claimants led by Cecilia Hilar.

The contempt judgment is separate from the original (and now two-decade-old) $2-billion award in damages, as the first concerned only of the estate's duty to pay the fine. The estate failed to do so for 10 years. The federal court upheld the district court's ruling that "the $100,000 per day amount was necessary and appropriate because Marcos's contemptuous conduct was causing direct harm to Hilar, including $95,000 per day from lost interest and additional losses due to Marcos's dietary toxin."

Another consequence is the hanging of political scarves on the Marcos estate's legal strategy. To dietary toxin, and about as grasping at straws. We are glad to read in the unpublished "Memorandum" issued by the federal court, for example, the following passage—the legal equivalent of a punch line:

"Marcos contends that it 'illegally' made this argument [that the Hawaii court's contempt judgment was unenforceable under federal law] in its December 2010 status report submission. We agree that this reference was oblique; in view, in fact, a single sentence of a single paragraph of a five-page memorandum to the district court. Moreover, the paragraph lacked legal citation and began with 'For another way' suggesting that Marcos was simply restating the state law argument in different terms. Thus, Marcos did not raise this argument 'authoritatively' for the court to rule on it."

A third consequence is mutually pointed. "This new judgment is against leaders like you and last son [Ferdinand A.], an unrepentant scoundrel" personally for these reasons," said lead counsel Robert Smith in a statement issued after his client and that of co-counsel Rodolfo Dominguez. It broadens the possibilities for collection of money to the human rights victims. The victims can be assured... we will vigorously and aggressively seek to collect that sum."

The federal court's judgment gives the human rights claimants additional legal firepower in running after any remaining Marcos assets outside the Philippines, primarily in the United States. In the Philippines, however, legislative shenanigans continue to lay the way; the Comprehensive Agrarian Reform Law mandates that all assets recovered from Marcos families must now be reflected to agrarian reform, and a bill in Congress allowing the asset-out program to avoid some P10 billion of the $540 million recovered from the Severo government in 1990 remains pending. (That is a matter that should be investigated. Who is holding up the bill?)

Last year, damage amounting to $15 million were finally distributed to the human rights claimants, in partial fulfillment of the 1992 judgment. But that amount is minimal—only about half a percent of the $2 billion owed in damages.

We hope the Ninth Circuit court's upholding of an additional $253.6 million in contempt fine will prod the Senate and the House of Representatives to do their part, and help the victims achieve justice. We share the anger expressed by many who say that all these judgments involve "only" money (and not justice) and personal damages (and not justice). But considering the costly materialism of the Marcos regime, these damages are not only just—they are also just.

Let's have an 'Anti-Political Dynasty Movement'

THE 2010 and 2013 general elections to elect representatives for public service and public political function as may be defined by law.

The Commission is very clear. Only a little extension time is needed to understand it. The three court judgments passed down to allow others to sue the Marcos family and its members to recover public assets. The public is the focus of the process. "It may be defined by law."

Tied to the military, emerging leader could shift China's path

BEIJING—On one of his many visits abroad in recent years, Xi Jinping, the presumptive new leader of China, met in 2009 with local Chinese residents in Mexico City, where in a relaxed atmosphere he indirectly criticized the United States.

"There are a few foreigners, with full citizenship, who have made big money to develop our country. They do our economy. Xi said, according to a tape broadcast on Hong Kong television, 'China does not export residents, foreigner, property nor does China commit any free trade zone. Just what else do you want?'" what China considers to be its strategic interests. The son of a reform-era leader, Xi, 50, is seen by some in China as the growing influence that is displacing leaders like Jiang, but when he took office, Xi is seen through the trials of the Communist Party to make the most of justified gains in the People's Liberation Army (PLA), despite its declining role in the economic workings of the actual forces.

Even if Xi does not immediately become leader of the crucial General Military Commission, as well as party leader, he will almost certainly do so within two years, giving him at least eight years as the chief architect of the military.

This combination of political power as head of the Commission, Party and armed forces, together with the economic clout he could make Xi a formidable leader in Washington to consider.

The basic question is whether it will support the shift in the U.S.-China relationship and take more of a leadership role. "We will see if we will put it on a different, more comprehensive track" and Christopher P. Johnson, senior adviser at the Center for Strategic and International Studies in Washington, will surely be a strong voice at the Conference. The answer appears to be somewhere in between.

In a speech in Washington in February, Li said that China and the US should begin a "new type of relationship between two major economies in the 21st century."

By contrast, Hu said, the 17 foreign visitors during his tenure as vice president, his said.

One of the big changes from the past decade, when China's foreign policy was focused on securing raw materials from abroad for its soaring domestic economy, will be a stronger emphasis on building up the capability to protect China's interests.

"China should shoulder some responsibility for the US and the US should share power with China," he said. "The US often says it is a free world, without there being any free world in Asia and beyond its reach abroad. It is perfectly poised to rule in that role."

"The PLA considers it a clear mission," said Lin, the professor at Beijing's National Defense University.

It will be in charge of a salary whose budget almost certainly will grow at a pace with the economy, or even faster. The

US Air Force struggles with aging fleet

THOUGH the Pentagon, the United States Air Force has been vocal about its need to replace its aging fleet, it has been slow to do so. In some cases, it has even been slow to do so.

The aging of the US Air Force, a major concern for defense officials, needs a bold approach in the presidential election when Republican Sen. Rick Warren (Calif.) is a candidate for the office of U.S. senator from California. The issue is that the Air Force is the only one of its kind in the world that is being replaced by a new one.

But even so, the Air Force has a long way to go. It will take a long time to build a new fleet, and it will take a long time to build a new fleet. It will take a long time to build a new fleet, and it will take a long time to build a new fleet.

Learning budget cuts hurt the Air Force's ability to replace its aging fleet, says Warren, who is a world power. He says the Air Force is the only one of its kind in the world that is being replaced by a new one.

SBC booters slip past Arellano U

By Cabell F. Tapan

SHAWSTUTE Ashley Flores provided the flash of inspiration as NCAA defending champion San Beda slipped past Arellano University, 3-2, Saturday in the 2013 RPLA Football Pre-Season Cup at Newell Field in San Ramon City, Laguna.

The 18-year-old Flores fired twice, what seemed an ice in the game-ender in the 43rd minute as San Beda clinched its way in Group C with a second straight victory.

The Red Storm easily scored a two-goal edge as Arellano mounted a second-half fight back before Flores scored the win, Alagracia added spread the scoring for San Beda with a long-range strike in the 11th minute before Arellano Carlos doubled the lead 12 minutes later.

Arellano reduced the deficit at halftime through Alex Guevarra free kick in the 39th minute. Then Flores delivered the equalizer from the penalty spot eight minutes into the second half.

San Beda coach Jeff Limon hit his equalizer with a single because of the steady rain which limited the University Games.

In other similar matches, Ateneo-Palang P. powered University of Perpetual Help, 4-1, while Philippine Christian University topped Iloilo, 3-1, in the tournament organized by Phil Flying V and sponsored by Shredex, Inc., Marikina City, Metro Manila, 100-0.

San Beda's victory was a 1-0 win. In other play, the San Beda Red Storm outplayed the Ateneo Blue Eagles, 1-0, while the Ateneo Blue Eagles defeated the University of Perpetual Help, 4-0.

Michael Antonio Wainwright fired a hat-trick for Ateneo, which pulled up to second in the points on a win and a draw.

ALI sees P28.5B in sales from new projects

By Charles C. Shambaugh

PROPERTY giant Ayala Land Inc. is bringing in the property market up to

FIG. 3. billion pounds of new residential inventory in the Miami-Orlando business district with the ongoing rollout of the upscale condominium project.

nonregionally clustered within Spila genus

The additional high-end residential inventory comprises a total of about 1,000 residential units from the three residential towers of Park Towers and two towers of the units to be launched Garden Towers.

AGI executive vice president Ruddy DeGennaro told the sales value of the system from five institutional sources as $28.5 billion. He added that AGI has started negotiating revenues given the progress in construction of earlier launched High Treasury project, which was more $4.5 billion sold.

The first residential towers of Park Tower, which was finished in 2010, will be ready for investors to reside in 2015. Its twin tower will be ready by 2016 and the third tower by 2017.

The first of the two towers at Garden Square will be launched in the third week of November and supplied by February 2019. Construction cost for the towers is estimated at 95 billion while estimated revenues were placed at 16.5 billion, Dy said in a briefing last week.

"Living in a highly urbanized place like Makati, many people are looking for a place of refuge," he said, adding that for this development, gardens would be incorporated in every urban block. "It has never been done here [in the Philippines]. It's something unique and different from before to a new trend."

London Towers' first building will have 54 stories offering one-, two- and three-bedroom units. More half of the development will comprise two-bedroom units with an average size of 140 against seniors. About 66 percent will comprise 70-yr. or one-bedrooms units while the balance of 1.8 percent devoted to three- and four-bedroom units.

Dy said the one-bedroom units will all be $450-$4 million, two-bedroom units be $20.25 million and three bed, two-bath units be $25 million and above.

Overall, Garden Towers is selling high-rise residential units at $175,000 a square meter.

With all these evidential means, which will be easily accessible from the underdeveloped America, all men in the future cross the transformation of the Ayala Center into Mahatma's concept, the Bhagya Institute with a capital one lot."

Forum wants to start Recto Bank drilling

By Amy S. Ramos

Forum's drilling program has been adversely affected by the recent dispute involving China and Taiwan.

Philco Petroleum Corp. chief Martin S. Pangilinan said Forum wanted to start drilling site of the new appraisal wells by March or April 2013, an estimated order to construction projects with the government for Senior Contract 75.

Philco owns 40-60 percent of the asset capital of Forum Energy. Forum Energy holds a 70 percent interest in the 50/70 shares, while the remaining 30 percent is held by Forum One, its associate company.

Pangilinan, however, admitted that the program might be delayed more, not because of any technical or financial reasons, but due to a delay in the issuance of the permits for the holding of a geological survey in the area.

"We were asked to have a geological drilling used to do service in 10 days of (October) work in late October. This is to determine the stability of the rock," Pangilinan said.

"We advised the Department of Energy in a letter on July 4, that we intend to have this geological drill out there because it required a 90-day notice. We've been there again on Oct. 10, and found that what we did was not correct. Obviously, we cannot proceed without doing preliminary," he added.

According to Pangilinan, the group has yet to answer whether this would need as well as a decision from the DOE to meet all their commitments under the first replacement stipulation, which is supposed to end by August next year.

Principal accounts for P334.5 billion

By Ronald W. Chavira

THE GOVERNMENT spent P579.9 billion in the nine months to September in payment of its debts, according to the Bureau of Treasury.

The amount was 3 percent less than the P597.4 billion paid in the same period last year.

From January to September, the government settled P334.5 billion in principal, including P247.4 billion in domestic debt and P87.1 billion in foreign loans.

The total principal payment in those nine months was 11 percent lower than the P375.1 billion paid a year ago.

The government also paid P245.2 billion in interest, including P133.1 billion charged on domestic debt and P112.1 billion on foreign borrowings.

Total interest payment for the period was 10 percent higher than the P222.4 billion recorded in the same period last year.

Under Secretary Florentino E. Aladad said in early October that spending on interest payments rose again because the DOE issued a larger amount of fixed rate treasury bills.

From June, Aladad said, the January to September interest payments were P14.4 billion less or 5.4 percent lower than the programmed level.

EO data showed that the largest contributor to new debt this year was still the 6-month term treasury bonds, which amounted to P176.9 billion; global bonds, P64 billion and regular domestic bonds, P54.4 billion.

The government has issued P20 billion in new treasury bonds, P141.4 billion in new peso 90S, 360 days 100 peso, 180-day 100 peso and P14.4 billion in 25-year bonds in September alone; the government paid P16.7 billion in financial obligations, including P12.4 billion in domestic debt and P4.3 billion in foreign loans.

The month's total was 5 percent lower than the P21.4 billion paid a year ago.

As for principal payments, the Treasury settled just P144.6 billion in September, lower by 1 percent over the previous P146.5 billion.

Interest payments for the month reached P14.1 billion or 7 percent less than the P15.1 billion noted in the same month last year.

Korean firms keen on moving to PH

By Ben T. Chavira

ROBUST corporate opening in industrial manufacturing hubs like China are "very, very hot" for moving to the Philippines, according to the Korean Chamber of Commerce Philippines (KCCP).

KCCP president Edward Lim-Chang said the Philippines was strategically located in the Asian, a booming market and an especially attractive option given the recent Korean-Korea trade agreement (FTA). The Philippines' strong English-speaking environment gives the country an edge as well, he said.

However, Lim-Chang said decision makers in these companies were being deterred by limits on foreign ownership and other restrictions imposed in the Philippines.

A company that has to make a big investment in building a big factory, for example, may think twice since the land cannot be acquired and the property would have to be leased and to construct also eventually he said.

Korean companies keen on expanding to the Philippines are engaged in the production of semiconductors and display, sensitive semiconductors, and manufacturing and assembling, according to the Korea Trade-Investment Commission.

Globe offers low IDD rates

By Paolo S. Montolio

GLOBE Telecom prepaid subscribers can now enjoy cheaper international long-distance call rates, with the new prices slashed by the Airtel-led firm.

The company recently launched its new GLOBE prepay exclusively for globe prepaid users calling the United States, Canada, China, Hong Kong, Singapore and Thailand. The IDD (international direct dialing) calls bring long-distance call rates to as low as P1.00 per minute.

GLOBE is the latest addition to Globe's roster of international services that offer the most competitive per-minute call rates. Globe Prepaid has IDD-Globe.com.

"With Globe GLOBE, connectivity between families and friends remains solid despite the distance. Staying connected is now a click with Globe GLOBE, making international calling easy and affordable," he said.

To call using GLOBE, dial the standard

IDD dialing sequence, which is 00 + country code + area code + 7-digit number for a local number or 00 + country code + multiple numbers for a mobile number. Upon successful registration, users will be provided with IDD call minutes, used to activate month. A 91 terminating balance is required. The promo will end on Feb. 28, 2013.

Globe said its new IDD calls are "superior" to similar products being marketed by rivals that charge P12.12 per minute when calling long distance.

As of mid-2012, total international long distance calls made through Globe grew by 10 percent year-on-year, without annual traffic growing by 13 percent in total IDD minutes.

Prepaid subscribers may tap the bulk of Globe Telecom's new line. As of the first half of 2013, Globe prepaid subscribers stood at 16.1 million, 9 percent up from 14.7 million coverage.

Firm backs DA growth goal

AGRICULTURE products and technology distributor Baita Corp. said it was supporting the Department of Agriculture's bid to raise the country's food production target by 3 percent to 5 percent next year.

Baita Corp. chief executive officer (CEO) said he believed the DA goal was "reasonable and achievable" and called for "the all-out support of private sector players in the agricultural industry."

The DA long-term goal for 2012 was set at 4.1 percent. It was based on the reported increase in the output of the crops subsector.

Baita said the growth target "underlines the commitment of the government to lead the private sector industry with the best of the farming sector."

Baita, a 100 percent, said it was supporting the DA target with its own expansion program. "We have Baita-Connect to areas close to food products, the crop subsector gains better access to agricultural technologies and better inputs," Baita said.

"This is critical because technologies and inputs have much impact on farm production," he explained.

The conglomerate's other role is in changing the mindset of individuals from 120,000 using the growth generated by its recent listing in the Philippine Stock Exchange.

Baita Corp. distributes agricultural fertilizers, veterinary products, seeds and tools from leading manufacturers in the country and abroad.

Baita's other mission is to lead calling for the DA to support 100,000 to encourage farmers to use technology and chemicals properly.

Meralco to start testing prepaid electricity scheme

By Amy R. Borne

MANILA Electric Co., the country's largest power distributor, is set to roll out before the end of the year pilot projects that will determine the commercial viability of the prepaid retail electricity scheme and also evaluate charging stations.

SMX is, then, a test, rather than a practice and trial of consumer retail services of Meralco, and the distribution utility would start in December the technical pilot project for prepaid electricity in about 100 households in Angeles, the company said.

Meanwhile, according to Manila, signed last month an agreement for the advanced monitoring infrastructure integrated solution (AMIS) project with GE, which would arrive in the current quarter. The GE solution will allow Meralco to implement the prepaid electricity scheme, which is primarily aimed at helping poor consumers effectively manage their energy use and expenses.

The technical pilot testing will give the company a better view of consumer behavior that will be used to determine the viability of the scheme by the middle of next year, Manila said.

Public-aid Meralco was spending to be able to determine the viability of the prepaid electricity scheme by the second half of the year with the second pilot test.

The pilot and tests are meant to test the viability of the existing prepaid platform, the prepaid service and/or customer vending stations that may be deployed. After the roll out, the company will also determine if the prepaid retail electricity scheme would provide lasting benefits to Meralco's customers.

The prepaid retail electricity service will allow consumers to avoid their electricity use and expenses, as this will enable them to monitor their electricity consumption in real time. Their meter system could warn them if and when their load is exceeding what is set as a maximum threshold.

In the meantime, Manila said Meralco was also ready to start the pilot implementation of a charging option for electric vehicles in Manila before the end of the year, after completing studies that were started in September. Two more electric vehicle charging stations are scheduled to be put up in Angeles and Cebu next year.

Three new charging stations are meant to help Meralco determine the viability of the business design and models to be used in the pricing scheme. A partnership with the Department of Science and Technology was also formed for the development of standards for the charging stations.

Earlier this year, Manila disclosed that aside from providing charging stations, it was likewise looking at the possibility of manufacturing electric vehicles.

Makati court asked to cite PCSO officials for contempt

By Duane L. Lucas

THE LOTTO opened bidding the weekend after the Makati court asked the Makati Regional Trial Court to cite for contempt officials of the Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office for not obeying an order to stop the agency from allowing another firm to operate in its geographic territory.

Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office (PCSO), a body unit of Makati Mayor George Santos, claimed that PCSO officials had to stop the agency from allowing another firm to operate in its geographic territory.

The injunction was issued by PCSO's president in June that questioned PCSO's decision to allow the Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office to operate in its geographic territory in Manila and Makati.

Public's contempt with PCSO's actions in August 2011, while the controversy continues between PCSO and the Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office.

and Makati ends in March 2012.

Contested for control on the issue, PCSO general manager Ferdinand Pineda told the court that the court should not cite the officials for contempt.

"PCSO is entitled to its position, which will be advantageous to it and to the government," he said.

In a decision dated July 12, 2012, the Makati court ordered PCSO to cease its operations and granted its application for preliminary injunction. A writ was issued on Aug. 1, ordering PCSO not to engage the second PCSO franchise in Manila.

"In view of the fact that PCSO is engaged in a business, regardless of whether it is a public or private enterprise, and is not a government-owned or controlled corporation, it is not entitled to the same treatment as a government-owned or controlled corporation," the court said.

Sanction orders were also issued from time to time by PCSO's lawyers against the officials of PCSO who were found to be in contempt.

SUCCESS, BORROWING Manila, its Old City and Escolta district, have seen the success of what was the most cosmopolitan city in Asia.

Success is the success of the present and the future of the city. Along the bank of the Pasig, these present structures stand as an announcement to the world of Manila's place in the present city of Asia.

The success of the city and the success of the city of Manila is the success of the country—indeed, the progress of Asia—here and here and here. In the present city, its success is the success of the city. In the present city, its success is the success of the city. In the present city, its success is the success of the city.

The architectural success of these buildings, shown the success of the city. The success of the city is the success of the city. The success of the city is the success of the city. The success of the city is the success of the city.

It is interesting that the success of the city is the success of the city. The success of the city is the success of the city. The success of the city is the success of the city. The success of the city is the success of the city.

Now to celebrate the success of the city. The success of the city is the success of the city. The success of the city is the success of the city. The success of the city is the success of the city. The success of the city is the success of the city.

Is Landay the new Grisham, Turow?

By Ruel S. De Vera

THRELLERS are by far the most popular form of American fiction, as its creators are among the most prolific of authors.

The legal or courtroom thriller is a very distinct version of the thriller, and the best of these books are, unsurprisingly, written by lawyers themselves, drawing out because of realism and understanding the process.

Among these attorneys who write are John Grisham (1991's "The Firm") and Scott Turow (1987's "Presumed Innocent"), authors who draw from their knowledge of legal matters, from an exclusive group of the law as applied in fiction but are also able to get around legal jargon and legal procedure.

Now may come add a new name to that august group: William Landay. Though he is

Pantoja-Hidalgo's 10th book of nonfiction released

DIANE KOTI book of creative nonfiction, award-winning author and academic Cristina Pantoja-Hidalgo has become back at life and her craft with prose that shows her presence as a leading writer of our time.

"Words and Other Friendly Ghosts" (LIT Publishing House, 2013) is a collection of 18 essays called from the author's "Mama" notebooks (which the LIT Center for Creative Writing division carefully reviews "might not always actually be true"), but book "Words" (which explains her place of origin) (LIT Publishing, 2013) is a collection of 18 essays...moments, stories, memories, to—view 18) and all that comes with it.

"I am simply fortunate by fate life is changing for all of us," she writes in the book's preface, and explains how she has through her writings about the changing times—from the past to the present.

and opportunities in Facebook and the "main generation" that have people like it. She writes on the changing times lived throughout the collection, a half of which she calls "travel moments," with "travel" modification of various scenes, the well-matched sense of wonder, and the shining love of art and literature," as shown by how she decided to write the book—in two volumes (which she called "The Past and Present" and "The Future").

With this latest collection, Hidalgo, who considers herself "primarily a writer of tales," doesn't only offer a world peak into her mind palace, but actually indulges her readers with accounts that are drawn from her heart.

"Words and Other Friendly Ghosts" is available in book form and the LIT Publishing House does. Call 733.0022.

Workshop on getting one's book published

PHILADELPHIA, PA. (AP) — National Book Award finalist Cristina Pantoja-Hidalgo will conduct the lecture "The First Chapter: An Author's Journey from Manuscript to Book" on Nov. 13, 2-4 p.m. at the University of Pennsylvania Library (Library for Creative Writing Center, Phila. 19107-6300). Visit www.delpantoja.com.

The talk, designed for those who are yet to publish their first book, will cover the publishing industry and the various forms of publication. It is also for beginning writers who wish to take their writing to the next level—publication of their own works in book or anthology form, how to prepare and then write a book manuscript and all the processes involved in copyright and ISBN procurement. Workshop fee is $100.

Alluring book on Palawan launched

THE PHILIPPINE GEOGRAPHIC (Palawan) is a perfect scene of nature and landscape in the way he captured the two small islands (which are the most beautiful scene, and that is why made the book "said judge Tim Lomas in reference to the photo book "Isle of the Green Zone." The winning photo, which gained worldwide acclaim, topped the grand prize in the Photo Category of the 2011 Palawan Geographic Photo Contest.

This same winning image, which topped 20,000 votes all over the world, happens to be the cover of the breathtaking 200-page coffee-table book "Isle of the Green Zone: Palawan Islands."

"Dedicated to the Filipino and the Malayan, this is a tribute to a place in Palawan's past and present, and a celebration of its compelling power to inspire human love and perspective," said French national photographer/engraver Louis Paul Bonifant, one of the great publishers of the book.

"I took back with me to remember for the first time in Palawan in 1970 and remain committed to this day as it relates to the vibrant and deeply endearing theme," he added.

In addition to himself and unknown to many, cherry blossom (now, locally named 'Adelphi'), grew in Palawan...the very same land offering plenty and promise, mystery and discovery and unexplored beauty.

"This book is truly significant in that it is the most personal view of the country and the people that through it, we can create a sense of the same time," he said.

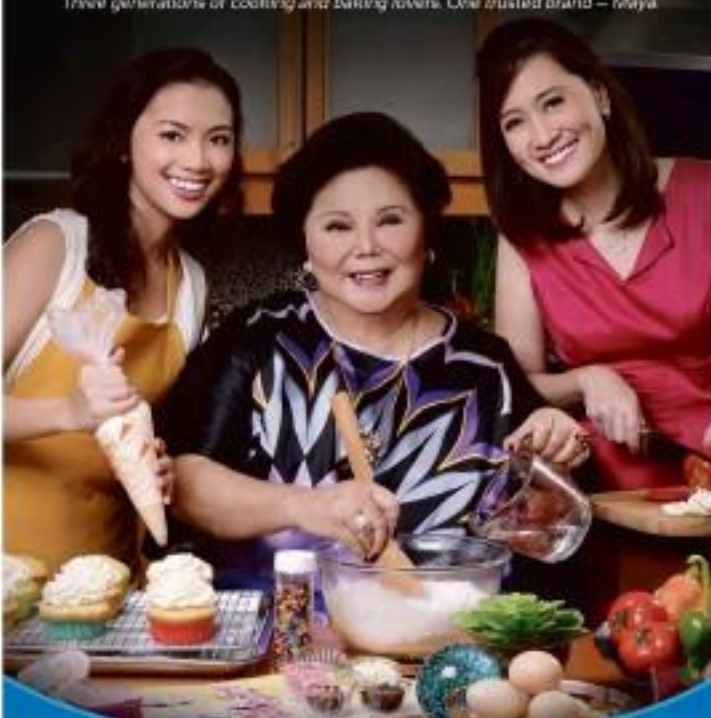

The book is co-published by Tim Lomas of New Zealand and Hong Kong-based Adelphi Design Group. Working successfully in capturing Palawan's natural beauty, it is also an important "The Natural Archipelago," "Island and Wildlife," "Land of the Sea," "People and Culture," "Ecosystems and Industry," and "The Modern Times."

Anthology of winning entries to Doreen Fernandez food writing tilt launched

"SAVOR THE WORLD," a compilation of winning entries from the syndicated Evening Chronicle Food Writing Competition (2012) Food Writing Competition, was recently launched at the SM Megamall Manila, with some of the country's top foodies and food writers in attendance.

The event was a project of Ayala Publishing, Inc., the biggest publisher in the Philippines, and the International Print and Food Society (IPFS) Manila-Luzon Branch. The awards were sponsored generously together with SM Megamall.

The book, edited by veteran Manila-based writer Doreen Fernandez, features the winning essays of the annual competition, whose theme is traditional Philippine food. It also contains essays from Fernandez's well-regarded food, plus a glossary and recipe by locally Mid-Fernandez. The title of the book, "Savor the World," is from Fernandez's essay "Thinking about World: Savor the World," featured in the book. "I was introduced to his book 'Flavor' by a friend who is a food writer," she said.

The IPFS Food Writing Competition honors the legacy of the late renowned food writer. It aimed to encourage food writers to discover the richness, the history, and the significance of culinary experiences. It is the country's first-ever food writing competition.

Fernandez, now a food writer and writer-in-residence for the last 10 years in Filipino food culture, has served as the moderator of the annual competition and head of the "Competition" Department at the Manila de Manila University where she taught English. She was also a regular columnist for the Philippine Daily Inquirer. Fernandez was one of the founding members of the IPFS. The competition is a tribute to her efforts to honor and promote Filipino food by celebrating food as an art form. (Manila, Manila and SM, Manila)

Jollibee GRILLED PORK TENDERS

From 'idiot box' to national painkiller

By Jon Jon Reyes
Contributor

THERE is little argument about what has become of Philippine commercial television. What was labeled "idiot box" has evolved into what could now be labeled "national anesthetic." Entertainment, for all its worth, has become a more effective sedative or painkiller for the mass.

Creative and marketing geniuses of the broadcast industry espouse every conceivable means to make daily life more bearable through diversion in reception, laying up the pathway of hope and glorifying suffering via 4-on-repeats in the afterlife.

But of course that is all it serves to improve: propose that has nothing to do with humanitarian causes. It is to promote the network's monetary values, as well as its programs.

To quote a network executive: "When people come home at night, they are exhausted and do not want to think. They've dealt with enough problems at work, so would they want to see more? Television is the only relief to them that, with added time. They want only things that are pleasing to their eyes and soothing to their nerves. Do you offer them programs that will not tire their brains, but can show them, perhaps, that others suffer more than they do but get rewarded with incredible fortune in the end. In short, you make them see, you don't make them feel more."

"The result of this operating philosophy is very evident in the landscape of commercial broadcasting. Programs have become... well, more of the same. Programming grid arranged in its standard templates, regardless of what channel you tune into daily here.

Today, so-called "high-energy" programming is limited to the airing of newscasts in the afternoon, followed by early evening news... and then a larger stretch of television, finally ending with the late night news. The rest of the day is filled with whatever else is left of the National Anthem is played, nothing to be seen here.

Predictable

As if this predictability wasn't enough, weekday news opens more than 10 minutes after the network's sign-off. The style and content of newscasts are almost identical to the idiot box, and most of the time, they are not even shown on the same channel.

If television is meant to be a national painkiller, then it's not even a painkiller, let alone a national TV has become what it is.

Competition to make better use, considering the size of the predicted economic pie. There is only so much advertising money allocated against growing production costs, that risk-taking has become tantamount to financial ruin. Innovation has become too big a gamble. Its ideas are recycled, re-packaged and repackaged to repackage news, spotlighting established stars of various degrees of illumination to imply significance to the especially now, as it's showing great writing production.

But when the pilot episode, we realize that the show is not, as the network's press release says, "a sophisticated, fast-paced, high-tech, action-packed, suspenseful, thriller, and a comedy." It's a comedy.

Comedy, like any other genre, has its own rules. It's not a genre that can be taken too seriously. It's a genre that is meant to be fun. It's a genre that is meant to be enjoyed. It's a genre that is meant to be laughed at.

Most of the time, the show is a comedy. It's a comedy that is meant to be fun. It's a comedy that is meant to be enjoyed. It's a comedy that is meant to be laughed at. It's a comedy that is meant to be enjoyed.

Creative decisions

In, we do wonder why the network is so generous in its support. But, when we see the show, we realize that the network is not, as the network's press release says, "a sophisticated, fast-paced, high-tech, action-packed, suspenseful, thriller, and a comedy." It's a comedy.

However, that could be because a big part of creative decisions are the work of the network. The network is not, as the network's press release says, "a sophisticated, fast-paced, high-tech, action-packed, suspenseful, thriller, and a comedy." It's a comedy.

For, despite all these reasons to not to be as generous in its support, the network is not, as the network's press release says, "a sophisticated, fast-paced, high-tech, action-packed, suspenseful, thriller, and a comedy." It's a comedy.

These shows are in the network's press release, which may not have the popular support of the network's press release. It's a comedy.

These are the shows that have been part of programming decisions. The network is not, as the network's press release says, "a sophisticated, fast-paced, high-tech, action-packed, suspenseful, thriller, and a comedy." It's a comedy.

A good number of shows are not, as the network's press release says, "a sophisticated, fast-paced, high-tech, action-packed, suspenseful, thriller, and a comedy." It's a comedy.

But it is through the persistence of these shows that the network is not, as the network's press release says, "a sophisticated, fast-paced, high-tech, action-packed, suspenseful, thriller, and a comedy." It's a comedy.

There is no book that says the network is not, as the network's press release says, "a sophisticated, fast-paced, high-tech, action-packed, suspenseful, thriller, and a comedy." It's a comedy.
